

Chase Minnifield

Tech Entrepreneur, Author, Retired NFL

Chase Minnifield is a former NFL defensive back turned serial entrepreneur, leading ventures in property management technology, security solutions, and franchising. As the CEO & Founder of EZOS, he has built a venture-backed PropTech platform with over 300K users, streamlining property maintenance operations for efficiency and scalability.

Entrepreneurial Leadership & Innovation

After his NFL career, Chase founded Helping Hand Ventures, originally providing moving and turnover services for student housing. Over time, he transformed it into a nationwide security services franchise, generating tens of millions in revenue and creating thousands of jobs. Helping Hand is now a platform for minority and post-sports entrepreneurs, offering discounted and free franchise opportunities to create lasting economic impact. Expanding his focus to public safety and AI, Chase launched Gard Technologies, which optimizes security operations using AI-powered reporting quality control, while GARDX is for the general public to feel safer in public spaces with security teams. Beyond business, Chase is the Founder of the Minnifield Foundation, a non-profit dedicated to uplifting youth through arts, academics, and athletics.

Author & Thought Leader

Chase shares his expertise in personal development and tech entrepreneurship through his two books:

- Build-A-Beast: 7 Philosophies to Improve Your Mental Strength – A guide to mental resilience, discipline, and achieving personal greatness.
- The Tech Audible: A Playbook for Entering the Tech Field – A step-by-step guide for entrepreneurs looking to transition into tech, secure funding, and scale their businesses.

Impact & Mission

Chase is committed to entrepreneurship, innovation with tech, and community empowerment, using business as a vehicle for economic growth and social impact. His ventures have not only transformed industries but also created jobs, and empowered new business owners.

He holds an M.A. in Sports Administration from the University of Louisville and a B.S. in Sociology from the University of Virginia.
